Fox hunting, the pastime of Kings, Princess and their fair daughters, should be revived in Kentucky as it has been resumed in the East. The gentle zeptyrs of spring will soon be upon us, and let the sweet, mellow notes of the fox-hound come with the spring time, as it is the most amusing sport of the age. This is the season of the year which brings to every hunter a pleasant thrill. In Maine and Massachusetts the horns are calling the dogs together. But this is not true in Kentucky, only in part. In the State the bound is the only champion of this popular pastime, for the champion of every pack or their ances-try, was bred in Old Kentucky, Madison being the banner county.
